African Business Coalition for Health

Africa's Healthy Future

With projected growth in the working population to top 1.1 billion people by 2040 and over USD $1.4 trillion dollars in consumer spending by 2020, African countries have become inviting markets for investment and, business and development partnerships. African companies and leaders have an opportunity to harness this wave to shape the development of better health programs and policies in support of healthier, more productive and vibrant economies.

Business leaders know that investing in the health of employees, communities and consumers today can protect and enhance future profits — not only ensuring business growth but driving economic prosperity.

The African Business Coalition for Health

However, addressing systemic health challenges is not something that a single company can do alone. Creating lasting impact requires collaboration among a range of stakeholders committed to developing the right tools to promote accountability and coordination, sharing risks and expertise and disseminating learning. ABCHealth can be an effective partner to ensure programs are efficient, technically-sound, well-communicated and impactful.

GBCHealth is partnering with the Aliko Dangote Foundation to work hand-in-hand with African leaders and companies — in cooperation with global businesses, philanthropists and development institutions — to establish and launch the African Business Coalition for Health (ABCHealth). The coalition will unlock synergies to help companies and their leadership contribute more directly to meeting national and regional health goals in the context of SDG Agenda 2030 and Africa Agenda 2063 — ultimately improving the standard of living, quality of life, and the overall health and wellbeing of all Africans.
